

July Fourth at Aqua Grill provides a farewell dinner for a number of New Jersey families

Call it Kismet, or just coincidence, but for a final night, and a special holiday celebration, the Aqua Grill Restaurant in Palm Beach appeared to be invaded by New Jersey families departing the island the next day. The Finduras from the Jersey Shore, the Reyes family of Leonia and the Scordos of Little Ferry, all found that enjoying the fresh fish of Aqua Grill was to exactly what they were in the mood for to mark American Independence Day, and also to bid goodbye to Aruba before boarding their planes the next day.

All agreed, though not your typical holiday fare, the meal was absolutely fabulous, the variety of fresh fish and seafood beyond compare. Even little Rocko Reyes, though not to talkative, displayed his complete agreement by eagerly consuming some fresh snow crab, something one does not usually find a favorite with two year olds, so it must have been good!
